

CHATEAU THIERRY - DAY CELEBRATED

Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels paid tribute to the valor of the marines at Chateau Thierry last night at Washington Barracks. The occasion was the celebration of the first anniversary of the famous battle, under the auspices of the marine and sailor department of the District W. C. T. U. Maj. Gen. George Barnett, commandant of the marines, presided.

Music by the Marine Band and songs were interspersed between the speeches. General Barnett, Mrs. Barnett, Mrs. S. H. Willey and Mrs. Emma Sanford Shelton also spoke. The singers were Mrs. Newton D. Baker, Gilbert Wilson, Mrs. Emily French Barnes, Mrs. Katherine C. Feiland, the Quantico Quartet, composed of Corporal McDowell, Private Williams, Sergeant Cardin and Sergeant Talbot; Herman Hoffman, Arthur Witcomb and Fritz M. Deiler. "Old Glory" was read by Miss Lillian Harig. Gilbert Wilson led the audience in singing marine songs.

GIRL KILLS SELF WITH GUN.
NEW YORK, June 4.—Frances E. Emery, twenty-five, whose home is in Tyone, Pa., shot and killed herself with a rifle in a room at the Martha Washington Hotel.

It radiated "home" in a measure all out of proportion to its size. The daughter of the house had chosen it as her own little apartment because of its sunny bay window.

"Thanks to the National Biscuit Company and the other packers of good things," said the girl, "I can live well without a kitchen."

A thick, warm-toned carpet invited one to lounge on the floor, while the big, fringed rug scattered about gave evidence that this was a permissible, though not a meadow, ground for other untidy things. In blue dress and cheerful smile, she was sitting on the chairs, enjoying the atmosphere during the day.

At the window, she was looking out at the city, and the sun was shining on the box of Uneeda Biscuit and a jar of poached chicken. Nimble fingers would set to work and in a twinkling little piles of chicken sandwiches wiches that looked oh, so tempting, would grace a yellow plate.

Or, "How would we like a tomato bouillon on a cold, blowy day like this?" And a package of N. B. C. Zwieback would be forthcoming from the window cupboard, while the tomato bouillon was made steaming hot on the lamp.

"We're so comfortable here," she said, "that I don't want to go out. I can sit here and read, or listen to the radio, or watch the movies, or even go to the city, and I can come back and find everything just as I left it."

It not only leaves the oven as the best soda cracker in the world, but it reaches you with all its original taste and freshness. Uneeda Biscuit has no rival in the esteem of American housewives.

Charles Ray Conquers Fear and Bandits Too

It's strange how a fellow can be a lawyer and be timid, too, and get by with it.
But young Beaudry practiced in a small Western town and that is the whole reason. Had he been in a large city he would never have succeeded.

At the time Royal tackled his little sign on a shack in this one-horse town he did not know that it was the same place in which his father had been killed years ago by a lawless band. Had he known he would have made for more peaceful surroundings for he just wasn't the sort of a fellow to look for trouble, yet it was always chasing him—he was governed by fear.

The game of men that murdered the elder Beaudry was still in existence and stronger than ever, and when Royal met one of his father's old friends, the man told him that it was up to him to avenge the death of his father by rounding up the gang and sending them to jail. Father's friend pointed out that it would be an easy job for Royal because he was not known to the gang.

But young Beaudry was afraid. He fought against his fear, determined to conquer. Have you ever fought with fear? Then you know just what sort of a fight the timid young lawyer fought and finally conquered.

Royal set out in search of the bandits and after many skirmishes and mishaps in which he displayed wonderful bravery he succeeded in rounding up the gang that had killed his father. The death of his father, the sheriff.

"The Sheriff's Son," with Charles Ray, shown at the Carolina Theater. Eleventh street and North Carolina avenue southeast, is not only a story filled with excitement and thrills, but there are also plenty of love scenes.
